

INDUSTRY AND THRIFT.

Prof. Carver Tells How Prosperity Will Come.

"The two great programs for prosperity for all times," said Professor Carver of Harvard, who is deeply interested in the educational side of the War Savings Committee, "are industry and thrift. We must reduce the amount of idleness. We must reduce the amount of extravagance. You can lay it down as an absolutely universal proposition that wherever production exceeds consumption, and in proportion as production exceeds consumption, there is progress. Wherever consumption exceeds production, there is retrogression. By consumption, understand, I mean using material things for personal gratification. In a sense, but incorrectly, one is said to be consuming coal when one uses it in an engine to produce steam. It is being used up, it is true, but it is being used productively. In proportion as it is used in such ways, we have more goods rather than less. But using an excess of coal in keeping too many rooms warm, or keeping them too warm, is luxurious consumption. Nothing comes of it; you have nothing to show for it afterward."

"How can we possibly consume more than we produce? The answer to that is very simple. If we slow down our building operations so that we do not keep up with the deterioration of the old buildings, we have used up more buildings than we have built in a given year. The rate of consumption exceeds the rate of production. You can apply that rule, not simply to buildings, but to the making of machines and tools. If we use so much of our man-power producing things that are used for immediate gratification, and spend so little energy for durable construction as not to replace the destruction of these durable things, we have retrogression, things are going down. That, I believe, is an absolute and universal principle, always and everywhere operative."

"In that part of the world where production exceeds consumption, civilization is going up hill. That is where wealth is accumulating and where durable things are being built. That principle must be applied here and now, where there is so much rebuilding to be done. In war, it is not expected that production can keep up with destruction or deterioration. It is quite possible, also, that production should fall behind deterioration in time of peace, but this could happen only in a thrifless community. It is by thrift that durable construction keeps up with or exceeds deterioration and destruction. It is by using money and man-power for permanent or future needs and not by using it all for the temporary needs of the immediate present."

"Getting Your Goat"

Just now the phrase "Getting your goat" is not slang, however apparent may be the resemblance. It is rather a subject for consideration by suburban dwellers, in connection with the milk situation. Because of the high cost of grain and scarcity of labor, some farmers are disposing of their herds, and the constantly soaring prices of milk and milk products are a source of much anxiety. Growing children need milk, but under present conditions many are unable to get it, and when they are so fortunate, it is often of so poor quality as to have but little food value.

The Swiss milk goat is especially adaptable to small farms and suburban lots. She is the gentlest of animals, and very intelligent—an ideal pet for children. A doe will supply enough milk for the average family. While a diet of tin cans is not especially to be recommended, the goat requires but little in the way of expensive food. It will eat the lawn clippings and table scraps. A wide range is not necessary for its happiness, but it is well to supply the back yard with an exercise to work off surplus energy.

Your goat will not only furnish rich milk at low cost, but release considerable amounts of money for Uncle Sam, for it is a foregone conclusion that small savings will find their way into War Savings Stamps. By getting your goat, lessons of kindness to animals and thoughtfulness for their care, playful companionship and nutritious food are provided for your children, and the investment in War Savings Stamps of the money saved, will insure a snug nest-egg for them when they arrive at maturity.

By getting your goat, you will put delicious milk and cheese upon your table, roses upon the children's cheeks, and your purchases of War Savings Stamps will help to put our country where it belongs—at the head of the world.

"When fabrics are high the necessity for renovation is imperative." Renovated garments are often handsomer than when new, and the money saved will buy Thrift and War Savings stamps.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Smith of Hardwick on the birth of a son on Feb. 20. The Smith family have been here the past two summers, as Mr. Smith was one of the foremen during the repairing of Plunkett dam.

At the annual town meeting Tuesday it was voted not to make any library appropriation this year. This means that no state aid will be given and leave our library with absolutely no support. It seems that no voter who had any interest in the welfare of the town, would have taken such action. The library has been in quite a flourishing condition for the past few years; it not being unusual for 150 books of the best literature to be put in circulation in one evening. The children have been learning to like and profit by good wholesome reading as they were the principal patrons of the library. It seems too bad that the boys and girls as well as the older people must be deprived of the entertainment and uplifting influence derived from the use of the library.

MRS. PHOEBE PECK

Mrs. Peck died here Feb. 26, after being confined to her bed for 18 years by a complication of diseases and for the most of that time being a great sufferer. She was one of seven children born to Nathan and Annie Rowell and was born April 21, 1838, in Hatley, P. Q. Three brothers and one sister have previously died and there now remain two sisters, Mrs. H. P. Abbott of Hatley Center, P. Q., and Mrs. J. P. Atkinson of Suffield, who with their husbands were present at the funeral held at Ayers Cliff.

She was married at Hatley, P. Q., March 27, 1856, to Charles B. Peck of Volcott, who died March 29, 1909. To them were born four children. The two sons, George and Edmund, died in early manhood and the two daughters, Mrs. Osmond Brown and Miss Maude Peck, survive. The latter has lived at home and it is seldom that a mother and daughter are so one in heart and mind as Mrs. Peck and Miss Maude. There is a daughter-in-law, now Mrs. Lawton of Beecher Falls, and two grandchildren, George (Brown) Sanderson of this place and six nephews and two nieces. Mr. Peck was a First Day Adventist pastor and Mrs. Peck was of the same faith and always ready to help him in his pastoral work. She was a very devoted mother, a good neighbor and a loyal friend. Both Mr. and Mrs. Peck were true Christians and their daily lives were worthy of imitation. May they rest in peace.

STATIONARY OR WHAT?

From the current issue of the Orleans County Farm Bureau News.

Do we always make use of every means within our reach to improve our farming methods? Certainly some farmers do not or there would be more than 440 members in the Farm Bureau at present. But here is a man for example. He was calling on his neighbor recently and a seed corn agent was there. His neighbor was buying seed corn, so this farmer decided he would buy also. He paid $11 for two bushels of corn. A few days later he called at the Farm Bureau office to find out about seeds. He casually inquired what the Exchange was selling corn for and was much surprised when he found he could have bought the same two bushels of corn of the same variety for $3 less through the Farmers' Exchange. Strange some men won't patronize their own organization and thereby save money, and not only that but make it a bigger and stronger organization because it does that much more business.

And here is another instance. A man bought some feed through the Exchange and saved $5 per ton thereby. But he thought some one was making a little "graft" so he decided not to buy anything more. Now he buys at retail and pays anywhere from $1 to $4 more a ton for feed, and $10 more per ton for fertilizer. All small items to be sure, but they count up to $50 or $100 a year with most men. And, as he has now found out, there wasn't any "graft" in it at all!

At any rate, these types of men are in the minority. They are in strong contrast to the group of men who attended a meeting the other night to discuss dairy problems. One man arose and stated that if the farmers would cooperate in shipping stock in that community, they could save a large amount of money in a year. Before the meeting broke up they had appointed a committee to look up this matter and report later.

SELLING A BOND BLOCKS PEACE

Each Holder Who Drops His Liberty Loan Sets Up a New Obstacle to the Government.

Liberty Bonds, the bonds of the United States which will be forever famous because of the way in which they were won for us, are today most important in what they will do toward establishing peace.

They stand as a great monument of the support given by the people to the Government in time of a crisis.

Everyone who shares in the building of this monument should do his best to keep it unimpaired, unmarred, the tower of strength to the nation. It is injured when a bond holder sells his Liberty bond for a slight or negative reason.

The Government has kept faith on the bonds with the people. It was stated that there should be an opportunity to dispose of bonds if it was absolutely necessary for holders to get the money, and an open market on the stock exchanges has been maintained for this purpose.

It was possible that the Government might have followed the example of Canada and directed that the market should be closed, that bonds once bought must be kept until they were due.

There was no contract to supply a market, but the promise was implied in the offerings and the faith has been kept.

To sell a Liberty Bond, except in an emergency, is not meeting the Government squarely. Each time a bond was sold it made it harder to finance the war. Each time a bond is sold now it sets up one more obstacle in meeting the obligations growing out of peace.

Each time a bond is sold now, except in emergency, its seller disregards the financial history of war bonds for three centuries. In all this time, with the coming of peace, they have surely, steadily, advanced, yielding a substantial premium to those who kept them and each holder has made substantial profits on his investment.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio. "I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.
